Where Soul Meets Matter Clinical and Social Applications: Aspects of Jungian Sandplay Therapy

Eva Pattis, Dr. phil.

In this Zürich Lecture Series, Dr. Eva Pattis will describe her extensive pioneering work with adults and children in many different cultures. In particular, she will speak about two distinct forms of sandplay that she has developed over several decades and used in a wide variety of challenging contexts. One approach focuses on processes of kinesthetic imagination, inviting patients to use only sand and water in their play. The other, Expressive Sandwork<sup>(R)</sup>, is a method developed especially for children in social crisis situations. In both cases, Dr. Pattis will show the psyche's astonishing capacity to regulate itself when free and protected space allows the creation of expressive images and narratives. Indeed, in these innovative applications of sandplay, the psyche's self-regulating tendency becomes remarkably visible and tangible.

Dr. Eva Pattis, a graduate of the C.G. Jung Institute Zürich, is a clinical psychologist and Jungian psychoanalyst for adults and children, maintaining her private practice in Milan, Italy. She conducts training for a number of established and developing Jungian groups worldwide. In 2002, she co-founded the International Association for Expressive Sandwork<sup>(R)</sup>, a non-profit organization that brings the therapy and training to vulnerable communities, i.e. those suffering such adversities as war, natural disaster, and/or social destitution (www.sandwork.org). Dr. Pattis has realized this purpose in her work with groups in many countries, e.g. Palestine, Colombia, China, Romania, and South Africa. Dr. Pattis is the author of several books, including Sandplay Therapy in Vulnerable Communities: A Jungian Approach (Routledge).

Rabbi Leo Baeck: John Hill
The Woman: Dariane Pictet
Cello: Barbara Miller
Director: Murray Stein

Presented by ISAP's veteran theater troupe, this play dramatizes a historic meeting between Prof. C.G. Jung and Rabbi Leo Baeck at the Zurich Hotel Savoy Baur en Ville in October 1946. Beginning as a tense stand-off between the two men, both giants in their respective fields, the encounter unfolds into a dialogue in which they exchange the grim reality of the events that caught them up in the years preceding and during the second world war. A mysterious feminine figure guides them through the process of confrontation and reconciliation.

Developmental Psychology

Nancy Krieger, PhD

Tuesday

11.09. 17:00-18:45

=== Basic Jung ===

Symbol: The Space Between Emotion and Idea

We will look at the role symbols play in transforming emotions into thought—both physically and culturally—and how the use of symbols in a Jungian approach parallels this process, giving us access to new perspectives on our life path.

Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology

Doris Lier, lic. phil.

Tuesday

11.09. 19:00-20:45

=== Basic Jung ===

What is a Psychological Symbol?

The notion "symbol" is one of the most important key notions in Jungian Psychology. But what does Jung mean when he speaks of symbols? What does it mean to interpret myths, fairy tales and dreams in a symbolic way? What symbolical meaning can an apple, a car, a hairdo have?

We will discuss these questions by using examples from the realm of imagination and everyday life.

Practical Case

Marco Della Chiesa, lic. phil.

Wednesday

12.09. 10:00-11:45

Group Therapy: Helping Each Other Heal and Grow

Introduction and overview of the history and concepts of group therapy

Psychological Interpretation of Pictures

Lucienne Marguerat, lic. phil.

Wednesday

12.09. 17:00-20:45

=== Basic Jung ===

From Image to Symbol

This course introduces Jung's understanding of symbols. With the help of a set of questions, participants will experience the transformation of a given image into a symbol. They will work in small groups before joining the closing discussion.

Psychology of Dreams

Gary Hayes, lic. phil.

Thursday

13.09. 17:00-20:45

=== Basic Jung ===

How Symbols Function in Dreamwork

The language of symbols is a universal language that can be, and, in many cases is, understood by everybody at some level.

By using symbol theory, will be exploring how symbols function in dreamwork.

Fundamentals of Analytical
Psychology

Diane Cousineau Brutsche, Dr. phil.

Friday
14.09. 17:00-18:45

=== Basic Jung ===

Lady Soul

"Soul" was previously reserved for religious and philosophical frameworks, while in the field of psychology the accepted term was "psyche." And yet, in psychology, the word "soul" has become more and more familiar. The aim of this lecture is to shed some light on the relevance of this semantic evolution and to contribute to our understanding of soul as a vital psychological entity.

Fundamentals of Analytical
Psychology

Paul Brutsche, Dr. phil.

Friday
14.09. 19:00-20:45

=== Basic Jung ===

Symbols and Transformation: The Meaning of Symbols within the Analytical Process

In this course we will explore four fundamental but essential areas of Jungian theory with regard to symbols:

Symbolic Consciousness

Symbolic Reality

The Reality of Symbols

Transformation through Symbols

Comparison of Psychodynamic
Concepts

John Hill, MA

Tuesday
18.09. 10:00-11:45

On Anger: Psychological and Philosophical Perspectives

Association Experiment & Theory of Complexes

Marcus West, BA

Friday
21.09. 10:00-14:45

Early Relational Trauma and Borderline States of Mind

The lecture focuses on the clinical challenges of working with borderline states of mind, expands Jung's concept of the complex, develops his work on trauma, and casts his work on the co-constructive and intersubjective nature of the analytic relationship in a contemporary light.

Recommend reading: Jung, C.G., CW16, "The Therapeutic Value of Abreaction", §255–293.

Religion & Psychology

Irene Berkenbusch-Erbe, Dr. phil.

Tuesday

25.09. 13:00-14:45

Religious Content in Dreams

We want to explore the sense of religious themes in dreams. Sometimes they are clear, sometimes hidden in relation to a special religion or to an obvious religious meaning. Maybe first of all they have to be understood in a symbolic way. This can be recognized only in connection with the dreamer's personality.

Psychopathology & Psychiatry

Marina Bodmer, lic. phil., MSc

Friday

28.09. 19:00-20:45

Suicide risk: Assessment and Management

Case examples to the corresponding lecture from last semester.

Practical Case

Joanne Wieland-Burston, PhD

Friday

28.09. 17:00-18:45

The After Effects of the Nazi Period on Clients in Psychotherapy Today

Twenty years of case work on this topic with a group of 10 analysts from various schools are the basis for the lecture.

Fundamentals of Analytical Psychology

Kate Burns, MA

Wednesday

10.10. 13:00-16:45

The Red Book: Initiation and the Soul's Desire

How does the soul announce itself and what does it want? Jung's sojourn with his soul as reflected in The Red Book anticipated his subsequent life work. His soul spoke a language particular to an archaic pattern of initiation evident in age old shamanic practices. This seminar will consider the particular language, abundant in The Red Book, that defines a pattern of initiation and how it manifests in dreams and other psychic events.

Bluebeard and the Feminine: Confronting the Destructive Masculine Both Within and Outside

What do the Bluebeard tales have to tell us about the destructive masculine both within and outside of ourselves and the archetypal patterns of attraction, repulsion, love and power? And how do we most effectively address these complexes at play within the lives of our analysands? Please prepare by reading three Grimm's fairy tales before the first meeting: Fitcher's Bird, Bluebeard and The Robber Bridegroom.
