About the 2011 Zurich Lectures Series

At Home in the Language of the Soul:

Exploring Jungian Discourse and Psyche's Grammar of Transformation

These lectures will explore the language of analytical discourse (and other related discourses) from a grammatical perspective, concentrating on ways in which psychological transformation is effected linguistically. Archetypal energies are active in grammatical structures, particularly those that underlie neglected aspects of our speech and unchanging word forms. Imagine Jung's psychology without the preposition between (zwischen), or the Latin affix trans, or the ubiquitous Über. These lectures will reflect on the archetypal undertow constantly at work in our discourse about psychology, in therapeutic dialogues, in our narratives from psyche's lived experience, in dreams, fairy tales and myths, seeing specific linguistic forms as a language for the soul.

Josephine Evetts-Secker was born and educated in England. She studied at the University of London and as a post-graduate student worked as research assistant on Randolph Quirk's Survey of English Usage. She finished training at the Jung Institute in Zurich in 1988, and then developed a small private practice in Canada while still teaching English literature at the University of Calgary. She returned to Britain in 1997 where she is now in private practice. She serves on the council of the London Independent Group of Analytical Psychologists (IGAP) training program and lectures regularly at the International School of Analytical Psychology (ISAPZURICH). She has also lectured at numerous Jung societies in Canada, USA, and UK. She has published poetry, articles, lectures and book chapters, and edited collections of fairy tales for Barefoot Books, now published in several languages. She is an ordained priest in the Anglican Church.

ABOUT THE SERIES

The Zurich Lecture Series in Analytical Psychology has been established by the International School of Analytical Psychology Zurich (ISAPZURICH) and Spring Journal Books to present annually new work by a distinguished scholar who has previously offered innovative contributions to the field of Analytical Psychology by either:

- bringing analytical psychology into meaningful dialogue with other scientific, artistic, and academic disciplines;
- showing how analytical psychology can lead to a better understanding of contemporary global concerns relating to the environment, politics, religion; or
- expanding the concepts of analytical psychology as they are applied clinically

Each year, the selected lecturer delivers 4 lectures over a 2-day period in Zurich based on a previously unpublished book-length work. This book is then published by Spring Journal Books in a book series of which Nancy Cater, Ph.D., and Murray Stein, Ph.D., are the series editors.
